

Dear Recruitment Team,

I am a fourth-year BS Computer Science student at NYU and would like to be considered for the entry-level developer position at Modulo Systems.

While I haven't yet gained official experience, I've developed some personal projects—that comprise a budgeting app and a CLI game—where code usability and readability have been the priority. I've also organized my school's development club, hosting weekly hackathons.

I am excited to learn, team success, and being a better software engineer. I thank you for considering my application.

Warmly,
Jules Emerson

